

For the Common Good	by Heman Daly and John Cobb	1989	The premier critique of corporate capitalism and how to create an economics for the common good
The Great Transformation	by Karl Polanyi	19445	The political and economic origins of our time
Solidarity Economy I: Building Alternatives for People and Planet, Papers and Reports from the US Forum on the Solidarity Economy.	ed. Emily Kawano	2010	Divided into sections on finance, production, environment, food, movement building, commons and wealth, this book covers topics from organizing the newly foreclosed homeless into Bank Tenant Associations to using eminent domain to establish worker-run factories.
The Company We Keep: Reinventing Small Business for People, Community and Place.	by John Abrams	2005	One of the best books on worker-owned businesses, this gem covers eight principles including workplace democracy, balancing multiple bottom lines, committing to the business of place and community entrepreneurialism.
Plenitude, the new economics of true wealth	by Juliet Schor	2011	Goes far beyond just a call to action by laying the foundation for how, both locally and systemically, a new economics can be set in motion.
Economics and Utopia	Geoffrey Hodgson	1998	Analyzes the ways of thinking that were taken for reality during the Cold War and traces their elements back through the minds and conditions of the early 1900s. In so doing, all kinds of dead, deadly and certainly limiting assumptions fall away, leaving a truly clear-eyed view of the path on which we have come.
Going Local: Creating Self-reliant communities in a global age.	Michael Schuman	2000	Communities can ensure their economic well-being by avoiding multinational firms without community loyalties, while investing in community corporations. Prosperity follows when ownership, production, and consumption become intimately connected with place."
Deep Economy: The Wealth of Communities and the Durable Future	Bill McKibben	2008	Points out that "economics ... has become abstracted from the actual planet we inhabit", and responds to the problem with systems ecology to problems in human society, particularly the limits to economic growth.
The Real Wealth of Nations: Creating a Caring Economics	Riane Eisler	2008	Focuses on the dichotomy between partnership and domination, and reaches back to describe forms of power with which a healthy humanity can live long term.
America Beyond Capitalism: Reclaiming our Wealth, Our Liberty, and Our Democracy	Gar Alperowitz	2011	Assembles all kinds of ideas that are inconceivable in the United States today—genuinely widespread worker-owned firms; a 25-hour work week, a North America made up of regional commonwealths instead of an imperial superstate—to make a book full of fertile seeds.
Agenda for a New Economy: From Phantom	David Korten	2010	Calls for a living economy where each community has "a sense of its own identity and a shared commitment to investing in the human,

Wealth to Real Wealth

social, and natural capital crucial to its vitality and capacity to serve its members

The Economics of Happiness: Building
Genuine Wealth

Mar
Anielski

2007

Illuminates the road ahead in creating an economics that can measure our genuine human, natural and social capital that are so essential to a world that maximizes happiness for all of nature.